THEATERS

Wears "Store Clothes"

Dressed up in "store clothes" for the first time in pictures, Roy Rogers, the singing cowboy, plays the role of a young lawyer who gets mixed up with small town hate and prejudice in "Arkansas Judge" starring the Weaver Brothers and Elvira at the Park. He is aided in the untangling by an older judge, Abner Weaver, in a Will Rogers type of character. Pauline Moore and Spring Byington are in the drama which gives the Weavers a chance to show the talents that made them famous in vaudeville "Her First Romance," the second film has Edith Fellows in a singing role.

Cattle Rustlers.

Cattle thieves ride through "Wyoming" plundering and killing until Wallace Beery and Leo Carrillo take a hand and do a little themselves in the production opening Tuesday at the Majestic. Beery and Carrillo had previously confined their pursuits to robbing trains but when thieves kill a Confederate soldier-friend on his way home after the war the duo decide to settle the score. Ann Rutherford, Paul Kelly and Marjorie Main are in the picture with Joseph Calleia as the bad man "The Howards of Virginia" the co-attraction has a stellar cast including Cary Grant, Martha Scott and Sir Cedric Hardwicke.

Turns To Comedy.

Changing his pace from the grimly realistic roles he has been playing for the past three years, Henry Fonda ventures into comedy with Barbara Stanwyck as a foil in "The Lady Eve," showing at the Ohio. As an unsuspecting expert on snakes, Henry finds it harder to extricate himself from the meshes of a beautiful cardsharp than it is to handle reptiles, a subject on which he is an expert. Hilarious scenes ensue as Stanwyck floors her victim Eugene Pallette. Eric Blore and Luis Alberni aid in the fun.

Horror Bill.

The Madison's double horror bill continues to thrill patrons as Basil Rathbone in the role of a psychiatrist plots the death of a wealthy woman in "The Mad Doctor" and a giant gorilla with a human brain stalks through "The Monster and The Girl" Ellen Drew is the heroine in both pictures Rath-

BROADWAY

—By Dorothy Kilgallen

Speaking For Myself.

I SEE where Veronica Lake, the new gold-haired glamor find, has been assigned by her studio to star in a picture called, of all things, "Chin a Puss." Can't remember when I ever heard a sillier title for any thing.

I don't think MGM has had a better break in many years than Jimmy Stewart's decision to spend a year in the U. S. Army. The good movie that came out of that move has every other film studio gnashing its teeth. Wayne Morris will probably be the next boxoffice "name" to go.

Few things annoy me more than the characters who insist on joining Bing Crosby for a duet as soon as Bing starts to warble on the screen.

I've just talked to a girl who came back from South America, and she says that as far south as Trinidad everyone is playing gin rummy—proving, I guess, that North and South America are brothers and sisters under the skin. You can't move fifteen feet in any of the local bistros without seeing someone playing the game or hearing someone talking about the game he just finished playing.

One night, just as an example, a local character went over to Grand Central Station to see some friends off on the Twentieth Century for Chicago. The pals persuaded him to ride up to Harmon with them. But they started a gin rummy game—and it didn't end up until Gary, Ind.

I loved Milton Berle's crack about Humphrey Bogart. Berle says Bogart has played so many rats in pictures that he's now blotting all his contracts with a piece of cheese.

I don't like being awakened by an alarm clock. I like to just sleep until I just wake up naturally. Never get a chance to, of course, but it's a wonderful idea.

Charity may begin at home, but it certainly has a lot of places to go after that, these days, with all the Greek Relief and British Relief and local charity drives.

I like the name Ida Lupino pinned on her dog—"Edward the Flowers Are For You to Pick." Sounds like something Dali would dream up for a pooch. . . . I like griddle cakes better than waffles.

I adore Noel Coward's records, even if he can't sing. . . . He always sounds so implausibly chic. . . . I'm glad the method George her scenes of high romance and grief and in her moments of wit and wit, she does not have much help from her partner. Olivier, bewigged, named and dour in deference to the character, gives what the kind will call an "adequate" performance. It's a job for any actor to play Great Lover in the Nelson get-up, and Olivier does struggle manfully.

The film makes no effort to conceal the illicit angle on the love affair, bows to the Hays office only in its opening and closing. A fading hag, arrested for stealing a bottle of wine, tells jail-fellows of the days when she was beautiful. (Sin's all right so long as it comes to a bad end.)

The opportunity to draw a parallel between Napoleon's threat to Europe and the present day is never missed, and there's a decided "Rule Britannia" note. The spectacle climax is provided by Nelson's victory at Trafalgar—sequences of great pictorial power. Extra-good performances: Mowbray as the art-loving, unloved husband; Gladys Cooper as the unloved Lady Nelson; Sara Allgood as Emma's practical mother, along for the ride in high society.

of the Ohio Gun Collectors. Mr. and Mrs. Guy Shawk of Mansfield, also attended the meeting.

Dr. G. J. Searle away on a vacation in the south until May 1 and Dr. W. H. Wolford due back Friday from a brief holiday out of the city. . . . Marjorie Brook, member of the county petit jury, discussing the merits of biscuits and shortcake with other jurors during a recess at the courthouse.

Office worker in the City building getting a better outlook on things this morning. Workmen were busy cleaning windows in the building.

J. T. Weber making arrangements for a cantata. . . . Mary Strater getting off the Cincinnati bus in Mansfield after a week-end visit in southern Ohio.

Mr. and Mrs. W. L. Seemuth, Woodland road, returning to their home today after spending the past six months in the south.

Announcements being made here the birth of a son to Rev. and Mrs. Harold Lentz of Ashland, Saturday at Samaritan hospital in inland. Mrs. Lentz was the former Miss Eleanor Selby of Mansfield.

Oliver Light, 74-year-old muzzle loader marksman who lives on the Hedges road, winning several prizes at a shoot held over the week-end at Washington Court-house as a feature of the meeting.

William E. Stoughton, 687 Mcerson street, and Leroy Gene arkley, 378 Springmill street, are home over the week-end from U. S. Navy trade school at Annapolis, Md. . . . Friends here turning that three Mansfielders, Margaret Wadsworth, Marjorie Adams and Walter Vely, were on honor roll for the winter quarter at Ohio State university.

15 KILLED IN OHIO MISHAPS; TWO HURT HERE

Transient Injured as Runaway Car Hits Him; Woman Hurt In Collision.

Highway traffic claimed at least 15 lives in Ohio during the week-end but Richland county escaped without a fatality or any serious accident.

Martin Brennan, a transient, was run down by a runaway auto on North Diamond between Fourth and Fifth streets but was not seriously injured. He was treated for bruises and lacerations about the legs. The car was returned to Mary Jane Bellore of Newman street. It had broken loose from where it was parked on Diamond street.

Mrs. Rhea Halley, 214 Fifth avenue, received slight injuries Saturday night when the car in which she was riding collided with another at Sixth and Diamond streets.

Several minor collisions were reported in the city but no one was injured and little damage reported.

A New York Central passenger train struck an automobile near Sidney and killed Howard Pence, 22, and Margella Sluffer, 17.

Hamilton county's toll climbed to 35—four fewer than on the same date last year—with the deaths of two persons. Robert Elliott, 65, was struck and killed; Mrs. Adele Zopf, 65, succumbed to injuries received in a collision.

Other victims were:

Athens—Donald Holt, 30, injured fatally as auto overturned.

Dayton—Richard Lee Scherer, 10, struck by auto as he walked home from movie.

Portsmouth—Edna Payne, 15, victim of hit-and-run truck.

Painesville—William Merrett, 57, as he walked in highway.

Cleveland—Ralph Beaumont, 19, hit when he stepped from street car.

Findlay—William Krichbaum, 69, killed as automobile hit bridge.

Warren—Richard Heckathorn, 20, of Newton Falls, when automobile upset.

Ravenna—Steve Onody, 26, of Cleveland, killed as car overturned a half mile south of Deerfield on route 14.

Eaton—Charles Mack, 25, and Raymond Mauld, 23, both of Middletown, in auto accident north-west of town.

Steubenville—Sherman A. Brown, 21, of Rush Run, one of five persons injured when their auto struck a state highway truck, died in hospital.

ACT TONIGHT ON JAMESON BILL

State Senators To Vote on Measure Setting Up State Defense Council.

Legislation to create a state defense council with subordinate district and local councils, introduced by Joseph Jameson, state senator for the Richland county district, will come up for a vote tonight in the Ohio senate.

Associated Press dispatches from Columbus said senate leaders predicted it would be passed and sent to the house of representatives for concurrence.

The new agency would be composed of seven state officials and six private citizens appointed by the governor. They would be authorized to conduct investigations and recommend appropriate state action in connection with the following activities:

Industrial production, materials and facilities; agriculture, food supply and land use; transportation; labor supply, training and relations; professions, trades and skills; consumers, housing, health, welfare, education, recreation, finance, civil liberties and civil defense.

Meanwhile, the house looked forward to a vote, perhaps Wednesday on the $351,894,000 appropriation bill for operation of the state government in 1941-42.

The bill, one of the biggest hurdles between the legislature and adjournment, will go next to the senate where committee hearings probably will consume another two weeks.

Women have won both pairs of red suspenders. Vernon E. (Sam) Vining has given away as prizes at his sales meetings at John Simpson Junior high school, but that didn't mean the suspenders weren't put to use. A boy at the Johnny Applesseed school is proudly wearing a new pair of red suspenders. He explained that his sister won them at a Vining sales meeting and gave them to him. Red suspenders are favorites of Vining's. He wears them at his lectures and likes to pull them out and let them snap back while he's talking.

C. F. Hergatt of Mansfield R. D. 3 not only found his car damaged yesterday morning as he left church but also a note explaining how it happened. Hergatt told police that a Michigan driver had left a note giving his name and address and telling the details of the crash.

If anyone in Mansfield receives mail from the First Lutheran church which seems a little less tidy than usual they can blame it on Rev. Grover E. Swoyer. He was taking some 1,400 letters, in boxes, out of the rear door of the church this morning and trying to get them into his car to take to the postoffice when he dropped several boxes. Letters were spread for some distance over the street and around the running board of the car. Rev. Swoyer picked up the letters and started for the postoffice again without further mishap.

Although county commissioners have approximately 45 applications on file for the job as courthouse elevator operator, the new elevator is still being run by passengers. The operation is so simple that most of them don't have much trouble with it. Commissioners are watching it to see how the self-operation plan works out, but they are expected to begin going through their list soon to choose an operator. They believe most people can operate the elevator themselves, but aged people, who need it most, will need help.

Three persons were injured last Monday in disorders during an attempt to reopen the plant.

A strike vote was called tonight for unionists employed on tugs operated by the Great Lakes Towing company, James Healy, secretary-treasurer of the AFL tug firemen, linemen and oilers protective association, reported at Cleveland.

Such a strike, he said, would bring a walkout of about 600 workers seeking $9.17 a day. The company offered $9.06, he reported.

A strike at a new Wright Aeronautical Corp. plant in Lockland, near Cincinnati, was settled over the week-end, with Harry Proctor, painters' district council business agent, reporting that a contracting firm had agreed to limit use of spray machinery. The five-day walkout involved 40 men and the F. Wrappel-Meier and Company. Proctor said a new contract had been signed.

Strikes still unsettled in the state were of several days to two months' standing.

Efforts to check uncontrolled migration of workers to areas widely publicized in connection with the national defense program are being made by the Mansfield office of the State Bureau of Unemployment Compensation, C. W. Handley, district manager, announced today.

"The local office is registering persons possessing skills needed in defense industries," said Handley. "To build a reservoir of labor urgently needed to accelerate the production of essential defense materials."

The registration was opened March 15 and will continue for at least two more weeks, according to the manager. The Mansfield office is combing every possible source in its campaign to register workers in Richland and Morrow counties.

"The Mansfield Employment Security Center has been designated as the labor recruiting and placement agency for this area," said Handley. "With the full cooperation of workers and employers in Mansfield and vicinity, wasteful, unnecessary labor migration and disruption of the labor market can be minimized."

STEEL STRIKE WOULD AFFECT 25,500 JOBS

Idle Buckeye Miners Keep Eyes on Negotiations For End of Wage Deadlock.

(By Associated Press)

Nearly 50,000 Ohio steel workers and idle soft coal miners expectantly awaited news of contract negotiations today as approximately 2,700 industrial workers watch developments in strikes affecting them.

An estimated 25,500 persons work in Ohio subsidiaries of the United States Steel Corp., in which the steel workers organizing committee has ordered a work stoppage at midnight Tuesday. The SWOC, a CIO unit, seeks wage increases and other concessions.

The U. S. Steel subsidiaries in Ohio are, with their estimated employees:

Carnegie-Illinois Steel Co., two plants at Youngstown, 3,500 and 1,000; McDonald 2,700; Mingo Junction 1,200; Canton 300.

National Tube Co., Lorain 9,300; American Steel & Wire Co., Cleveland, four plants 7,500; American Bridge Co., Toledo, not operating but has skeleton force.

Between 17,000 and 20,000 Ohio bituminous miners have been idle a week during negotiations for a new contract between the United Mine Workers (CIO) and operators.

An AFL-CIO jurisdictional dispute at the E. F. Hauserman Co. factory in Cuyahoga Heights was settled, meanwhile, and workers who struck about a week ago agreed to resume today the making of pre-fabricated, low-cost houses for employees of the Indian Head (M.D.) naval powder plant.

Three persons were injured last Monday in disorders during an attempt to reopen the plant.

A strike vote was called tonight for unionists employed on tugs operated by the Great Lakes Towing company, James Healy, secretary-treasurer of the AFL tug firemen, linemen and oilers protective association, reported at Cleveland.

Such a strike, he said, would bring a walkout of about 600 workers seeking $9.17 a day. The company offered $9.06, he reported.

A strike at a new Wright Aeronautical Corp. plant in Lockland, near Cincinnati, was settled over the week-end, with Harry Proctor, painters' district council business agent, reporting that a contracting firm had agreed to limit use of spray machinery. The five-day walkout involved 40 men and the F. Wrappel-Meier and Company. Proctor said a new contract had been signed.

News-Journal A League golfers are worried by the draft, not so much by the question of whether they'll be drafted as by the number who already have been summoned to Uncle Sam's fighting forces.

"That's why," says Pete Linster, "we're holding tomorrow night's meeting at Possum Run. To sorta count noses and find out who's left."

And that's something for other golfing leagues to consider. Golf isn't any more, an old man's game.

The folks are as good as the people now. I mean all those Mansfield klegers entered in the city tournament. And the elite don't even rate.

Bissman Birdie Brands didn't come close with their 6-pin handicap, and look at those other clubs, who missed the seasonal headlines, crashing through now in the bright 3,000's.

"What fun we have," the duffers jibe.

"Now we've got handicap on our side."

Football fans of suspecting minds have their own answer now for the flood of letters with which Ohio high school coaches last winter endorsed Paul Brown of Massillon for the Ohio State coaching job.

Massillon's Mighty Men turned out for spring practice last week with only two regulars from last fall's great eleven, and with a former junior high coach, Bud Houghton, taking over the reins.

It would take a Brown, say the grid-wise, to make something out of that situation.

But Coach Paul Snyder of the Mansfield Tigers doesn't agree. "That Massillon system was so good," says Snyder, "that it should hold up of its own momentum for several years."

"After that it will depend on how the new coaches fit in, and carry on the system."

As Brown goes, so goes Massillon? Then all those Mighty Men of 1940 will go to Columbus in '41. You think not?

Mansfield's track schedule lists only a few meets, but don't let that deceive you.

"Last year," says Harry Mehock, "we had 53 track meets, high and junior high and grade school."

Somebody ought to put a stop to that. The kids are doing too much running around.

"Running around?" ejaculate Tiger tracksters. "Did you see our score at Newark? We weren't running around. We were chasing around."

This American language is a great thing.

Findlay Auditor Counts Up Pins

DAYTON — UP — A 33-year-old Findlay auditor today held the lead in the Class A All-Events and the Class A singles of the 88th annual Ohio State Bowling tournament following the most sensational one-day scoring performance yesterday in the history of the Buckeye classic.

Ed Kawolies, veteran of 18 years, turned in a 1,380 total yesterday as he demolished the pins for 569 in the doubles, 661 in the singles and 615 in the first man event. Bowling as leadoff man for the Findlay Recreation, Kawolies rolled his entire tournament schedule in one day.

Tom Davis, Columbus, took the lead in the Class B All-Events, with a score of 1,855. Wayne Field bowled 2,870 to place second place behind the Toledo Elm Recreation in the Class A women event.

The Newburgh Heights Browns' Tavern total of 3,600 was not endangered by any of the Class B squads which rolled last night.

Ted Williams Lost To Sox

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. — (AP) — Boston's Red Sox today were minus the services of Ted Williams, slugging outfielder who was found to be suffering from a broken ankle bone when he fell during an exhibition game at Birmingham. Williams sustained the injury in a recent exhibition game but said he thought it was a bruise.

Manager Joe Cronin said Williams probably will be out of the Sox lineup for several weeks as the team boarded a train for Orono, Ky. Williams was sent to Boston where he will undergo treatment.

Cincy Reds Look Good In South

McKeechie Steers Club For Flying Start.

By JUDSON BAILEY
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

THE Cincinnati Reds aren't squeezing the Grapefruit league dry but they are making themselves look mighty good for the opening of the National league season a week from tomorrow.

The world champions have won 15 games and lost 10 in the citrus circuit, a mark which looks a little puny beside the record of the New York Yankees' 22 victories and 5 defeats.

But 24 of the Reds' 25 games have been against major league opponents—seven different clubs representing both leagues—and Bill McKeechie has been steering his raiders to hit opening day at full throttle.

The tipoff that he is about to succeed came yesterday when Cincinnati downed the Boston Red Sox, 5 to 3, with six-hit pitching by Duke Derringer and Gene Thompson and a 12-hit attack.

Derringer had been struck in the groin by a batted ball in Florida and had been away from the team for a couple of weeks. He showed that he is his old fearsome self again by holding the Red Sox to one hit for three innings in his first start since rejoining the club.

Catcher Ernie Lombardi has been limping on the ankle since just before last year's world series and there has been doubt about how much help he would be this year. But he rapped out three hits, two of them doubles, and caught six innings yesterday to show he is fit.

These developments overshadowed the sleight-of-hand magic many of the other big leaguers were showing the bushes last week.

Most of the teams were heading homeward with one-day stands against assorted rivals and the Yanks, Brooklyn Dodgers and St. Louis Cardinals all succeeded in winning every one of their seven sessions during the week. But there wasn't a major league victim in the lot.

The standings:

Club	W.	L.
Yankees	22	5
Dodgers	20	7
Browns	15	7
Athletics	19	9
Senators	12	12
Indians	15	9
Reds	15	10
Red Sox	14	10

Indians Drop Weird Contest

Feller Slated To Hurl For Tribesmen Today.

JOHNSON CITY, Tenn. — (AP) — With the season's opener only a week away, Manager Roger Peckinpaugh nominated Bob Feller today for his semi-final appearance of the training schedule.

Winner of 27 games in 1940, blazin' Bob will face the New York Giants again in Richmond, Va., Friday and then take the usual three-day rest before firing at the Chicago White Sox in the Cleveland inaugural April 15.

The Indians lost to Knoxville of the Southern Association yesterday in a weird game, 15 to 13. Mel Harder was pounded for 11 hits in 4 2-3 innings and Clint Brown gave up six of the rest of the distance. Harder also walked four batters in making his poorest showing of the year.

Sleeping fielding contributed to the defeat with Ken Keltner drawing three errors and Hal Trosky one. Several ordinary drives also were misjudged into hits.

Keltner was just as hot at bat as he was cold in the field, smacking two home runs and a double. Trosky also hit for the circuit, his blow coming with the bases full. Ray Mack got Cleveland's fourth homer.

The Indians shared their pitching staff to 15 yesterday with the coloring of Dewey Adkins, young right-hander, to Wilkes-Barre. Four of the nine hurlers will go before the 15th deadline.

KEEFE OWNS SHARE OF DOUBLES TITLE

Bob Keefe, Mansfield table tennis expert, yesterday holds the ball of the double crown of the National Open tournament at the Hotel Elmside in St. Louis.

Keefe and Harry Grigsby of Lima defeated John Leon and Frank Roemer of Lima in a hard-fought final match 21-17, 20-22, 22-24, 21-15, 21-17.

Rolls Record Match Score

MARGARET BAKER

Miss Baker of the Royal Crown Cola quintet, yesterday rolled the highest women's match score in the history of Meder alleys—677 on games of 226-221-230. "It was the first time I was ever able to put three 200 games together in a match," said Miss Baker, who recently rolled a 685 practice series on the West Third street alleys.

BOWLING SCORES

Things happened in Mansfield bowling circles over the weekend, and if some of the bowlers are still going around in circles they have a good excuse.

The city tournament got away to a flying start. Margaret Baker rolled a record match series of 677 for women, and Glenn Lanning, sr., won the all-events championship of the national Moose tournament at Dearborn, Mich.

Eagles club took the team lead in the city handicap meet with a 3,022 total. Jim France and Merle Frost stepped out in front with a doubles mark of 1,319. A. Cozenza chalked 611 for the singles lead and France paced the all-events with 1,885.

Margaret Baker rolled 226-221-230—677 to pace the Royal Crown Cola women's team to a 300-pin victory over Silver King Tractors. The men picked the wrong day to gain revenge for a previous defeat as the women bowled a 2,656 total.

Orange St. Cafe women defeated a Galion feminine quintet 2,665 to 1,989 with Kate Cheney showing the way on a 502 total and Evelyn Jocha turning in high game of 212.

Sons of Herman won over Mayer Drugs 2,278 to 2,247. Heiler paced the winners with 475, but Kovach of the Drugs turned in high score of 522.

Bebout & Leedy klegers of Mt. Vernon defeated Bellville 2,427 to 2,347, with J. Hennell collecting high score of 514.

Mike Sees Trouble For Louis

But Ballyhoo Fails To Worry Brown Bomber.

ST. LOUIS — (AP) — Mike Jacobs, St. Louis promoter of New York and points west, predicted today that Joe Louis may possibly run into some trouble in his title bout here tomorrow night with Tony Martin because of the challenger's small stature.

Jacobs, who controls the professional destinies of both fighters, made the statement after watching the chunky Musto, Chicago heavy, go through what was officially described as "four fast rounds" with sparring mates. He did not hazard a guess as to how long the fight, scheduled for 15 rounds, would go.

"Louis will have a hard man to fight in such a fellow as Musto," Jacobs said. "He'll have to shoot his punches downward, something he hasn't had to do before."

The assertion had no visible effect upon the odds favoring Louis, however. It was still virtually impossible to find any trace of Musto money.

"I know that Musto can punch and hurt," Jacobs explained. "If he connects with a good solid punch it is liable to throw Joe off keel for awhile."

The two fighters wound up training yesterday, Louis boxing three rounds and Musto his four-day. A capacity crowd is expected to see the fight at the Arena at bargain basement prices ranging from $1.25 to $6.

Paul Carbetta Fight Booked

But He'll Scrap Here, Not In Cleveland.

The Cleveland Plain Dealer said today that Paul Carbetta, Mansfield boxer, would meet Dado Marino of Hawaii at Cleveland's Arena April 14—but Carbetta isn't going to fight Marino.

Russ Gimble, of Friendly House, has informed Sam Otis, sport editor of the Plain Dealer that Carbetta is not available for the Cleveland card.

Paul is booked for the main bout of an amateur card here in Mansfield April 17, "and we are taking no chances on his getting hurt in Cleveland three days before," Gimble said.

"We disappointed Mansfield fans when we were forced to take Carbetta off the British Relief Fund benefit card because of rules of the Chicago Golden Gloves tournament in which he was booked at the time, and we're not going to disappoint them again," Russ declared.

So the Amateur Trainers association, promoters of the Cleveland show, can look for someone else to meet the classy Hawaiian.

For experienced starters Southworth has thin Lon Warneke, Mort Cooper, Bill McGee and Clyde Shoun. Max Lanier, who won 9 for the Cards last year, also may be a starter.

The club looks fair defensively, the catching should be satisfactory, and the hitting should be about tops in the league. If Southworth can develop some of his young pitchers and get good results from the veteran hurlers, the Cardinals may grab the flag.

Mize, big gun on the Cardinals now, that Joe Medwick has departed, was late reporting to camp—because of a contract argument—but Big John will be at first base when the campaign starts.

The five shortstops are Jimmy Brown, Frank Crisp, Eddie Lake, Martin Marion and Steve Mesmer. Brown is slated to play second, with Mesmer at third and either Marion or Lake at short. The Cardinals have plenty of punch in the outfield, with eight flycatchers who hit above .300 last year. Fancypitching Terry Moore (.304), Enos Slaughter (.306) and either Ernie Key (.310) or Harry Walker (.313) up from Columbus shape up as the probable starters in the outer gardens.

The Cards are doing some experimenting with the pitchers and catchers. A rookie from Columbus, Walker Cooper, is due to do most of the backstopping while the veteran Gus Marcuso, former Cardinal who later did turns with the Giants and Dodgers, will help. Marcuso is being counted on to develop the flock of young pitchers.

Only the Boston Red Sox, with 21, have more pitchers at camp than the Cards. There are 20 here and several of them had

Card Prospects Bright Despite Infield Puzzle

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. — (AP) — They've substituted B-1 vitamin pills for Pepper to inject pep into the Cardinals this spring and the St. Louis gang is casting threatening glances at their Cincinnati National League rivals in the pennant chase.

The old Pepper, John Leonard Martin—is missing this year for the first time in a decade. His out on the coast prepping the Sacramento team. And without Pepper to pep up the practice drills, the Cardinal bosses are feeding vitamin pills to everyone. Judging from the club's noise and ginger the pills are working.

Manager Billy Southworth's major task appears to be that of building an infield around hard-hitting, slow-footed, bulky Johnny Mize and five shortstops.

Mize, big gun on the Cardinals now, that Joe Medwick has departed, was late reporting to camp—because of a contract argument—but Big John will be at first base when the campaign starts.

The five shortstops are Jimmy Brown, Frank Crisp, Eddie Lake, Martin Marion and Steve Mesmer. Brown is slated to play second, with Mesmer at third and either Marion or Lake at short. The Cardinals have plenty of punch in the outfield, with eight flycatchers who hit above .300 last year. Fancypitching Terry Moore (.304), Enos Slaughter (.306) and either Ernie Key (.310) or Harry Walker (.313) up from Columbus shape up as the probable starters in the outer gardens.

The Cards are doing some experimenting with the pitchers and catchers. A rookie from Columbus, Walker Cooper, is due to do most of the backstopping while the veteran Gus Marcuso, former Cardinal who later did turns with the Giants and Dodgers, will help. Marcuso is being counted on to develop the flock of young pitchers.

Only the Boston Red Sox, with 21, have more pitchers at camp than the Cards. There are 20 here and several of them had

Masters Title Won By Wood

Dame Fortune Finally Beams on Craig.

By HARRY FERGUSON
NEW YORK — (AP) — She is a little dame who will nudge the money putts away from the cups for year after heart-breaking year, but if a golfer woos a Lady Luck long enough there will come a day when she smiles and showers down the gold.

The Lady and Craig Wood are pals again.

She took him by the hand down among the dogwood at Augusta yesterday, told him to let by-gones be by-gones and brought him home winner in the masters tournament.

It couldn't have happened to a nicer guy, for Craig Wood has been a patient, persistent suitor of the Lady over a period of years stretching out so long that other men would have started Enoch Arden proceedings against her.

It will, I believe, be the most popular golf victory of the year no matter what happens in the open, the amateur or the P. G. A. Even the Nelsons, the Byrds and the Hogans who shot their hearts out trying to catch Wood will applaud him today. Press and public have been protesting for years over the series of hard breaks that kept Wood out of the magic circle of the big tournaments, and the only voice not heard in that chorus of complaint was that of Wood himself. He kept his chin up, accepted the breaks as they came and went on shooting fine golf.

Look at his record of bad luck and figure for yourself how many men could have stood up under it.

He tied Denny Shute for the British open championship at St. Andrews and then lost the play-off.

In 1939 he finished in a three-way tie for the United States open at Philadelphia with Shute and Byron Nelson. In the play-off Nelson and Wood shot 68's and Shute dropped out with a 76. The next day Wood lost the second play-off round to Nelson.

He tied for the North and South open in 1931 and lost to Johnny Golden in the play-off.

He was runner-up in the PGA in 1934, losing to Paul Runyan. But the worst blow Lady Luck ever dealt him was in 1935 in this same masters tournament and Wood had finished with a score that seemed unbeatable. He was in the clubhouse receiving congratulations from persons who slapped him on the back and told him only a miracle could beat him. Then, far out on the sloping 15th fairway, the miracle occurred.

Tough little Gene Sarazen was coming up the stretch with a one-in-a-million chance. He slapped a good drive off the 15th tee, walked up to his ball and hauled out a spoon. Hardly glancing at the flag, 220 yards away, Sarazen hit a shot that streaked for the green, bounced, and rolled into the cup. It was a double eagle, a two on a par-five hole, and a shot that never has been matched in major competition.

Then those who had been congratulating Wood brought him the bad news. "The lucky stiff," Wood said, and added with a grin, "that's golf."

Sarazen came on in to tie Wood and the next day beat him in the play-off.

From that day Wood was known as "the great runner-up," but this year the Lady set out early to destroy the name and the legend. She put him in front and kept him there all the way, despite the fact that most of the pros would rather be a shot or two off the pace than leading the pack when the final round starts. But the Lady was taking no chances this trip and she made up for all her shrewish behavior in the past by giving Wood a 66 on the final round. He ran ahead all the way.

So at 39—an age when most golfers are over the hill—Craig Wood won his first big tournament, and, if you ask me, Lady, it was about time.

Need Rooms For Relays Athletes

Manager Harry Mehock of the Mansfield Relays today made a plea for rooms for the Relays athletes. "We need to provide rooms Friday night, and breakfast Saturday morning for the April 19 event," Mehock said.

Persons with rooms available should contact Ralph Chapman at the Y. M. C. A.

Mehock also asked persons who have promised donations to the relays fund to send their contributions to Dean Eckert at the Farmers bank.

BUCYRUS LODGE HAS INITIATION FOR 40 SUNDAY

Knights of Columbus Induct Class of District Candidates.

BUCYRUS—Knights of Columbus lodge here held an unusual initiatory program Sunday afternoon when more than 40 candidates from various cities were given second and third degree work by State Deputy John D. King.

This was the first time in 20 years that these degrees have been given in the Bucyrus lodge rooms.

Deputy King was the speaker at a dinner meeting at the Weaver hotel following the initiatory work.

Friday night the lodge initiated 20 new members from the local district, which takes in Bucyrus, Galion, Crestline, and New Washington.

The Bucyrus "board of education," which is to rule over the school system April 30, announced the appointment of George A. Hickson, senior and son of Rev. and Mrs. G. A. Hickson, to the superintendency of schools for that day.

The students will take over all administrative and teaching positions. The boy school board has made several appointments and will make others before taking office.

Members of the board are Carson Kanode, Walter Michael, Robert Bonin, William Rinker, and Ted Heckler.

J. W. Loomis, council president during 1938 and 1939, has announced his candidacy for mayor at the Republican primary election in August. He is a retired postal clerk.

Local draft officials announced today that they will name two Crawford county youths within the near future to replace two others who have been turned down by army physicians.

No draftees have left here for a week and there is no call at the present time. It is believed that the two replacements will be the only ones to leave Bucyrus within the next week or two.

Cameraman And Reporter Beaten At Gambling Club

CLEVELAND—(AP)—John F. Huth, reporter, and Andrew L. Krafft, photographer for the Cleveland Plain Dealer, were recovering from a severe beating received at the hands of a dozen hoodlums who attacked them when they went to take pictures of the Harvard club, a gambling spot in suburban Newburgh Heights.

Two cameras and large amounts of photographic material worth hundreds of dollars were destroyed by the thugs.

Marshal Frank N. Novak of Newburgh Heights failed to make any arrests when he visited a tavern to which the gang was reported to have retired after administering the beating. Novak said he failed to find a single man whose knuckles were bruised.

Newburgh Heights long has been under fire as a haven for gambling clubs.

UNITES TUESDAY

SHELBY—Funeral services for Constance Mott, 86, who died here Saturday at the home of her nephew, Elmer Mott, will be held at 8:30 a. m. Tuesday at Most Pure Heart of Mary Catholic church. Rev. Michael A. McFadden will officiate. Burial will be in the Shelby Settlement cemetery.

Born at Shelby Settlement Sept. 20, 1855, Miss Mott had made her home with her nephew for the past 25 years.

COLLEGE DAY

SHELBY—Field representatives from 12 colleges were taking part in College Day program today at Shelby high school.

Senior students were to hold conferences this afternoon with the representatives to learn about the various educational institutions they are interested in attending.

CRESTLINE—Mrs. C. L. Harker, Route 6, Mansfield; Robert Wood, South Seltzer street, and Mrs. L. C. Goard, West Bucyrus street, were dismissed from Emergency hospital Sunday.

TEMPORARY POST AT MIAMI U ACCEPTED BY GALION TEACHER

GALION—A leave of absence has been granted Richard Horn, Galion school teacher, in order that he may accept the invitation by Dean E. J. Ashbaugh to teach at Miami University, Oxford, during April and May.

Mr. Horn will substitute for John Richardson who is completing his studies for his doctor's degree at Ohio State university.

For the past five years, Mr. Horn has taught in the Galion schools. In addition to teaching part-time, he has been serving as director of the audio-visual education department of the Galion school system. Under his direction, several school and community films have been produced. The most recent film was made of the Galion Nursery school.

During his absence from the Galion schools, his classes will be taught by Supt. O. E. Hill.

The Galion fire department was summoned to the Galion Iron Works and Manufacturing company Saturday evening to extinguish a fire in the foundry.

It was believed the blaze started from oil in a sand pit. The blaze was discovered by the night watchman. While the inside of the room was badly scorched, the loss was estimated as high.

THE OLD HOME TOWN

CONFIRMED

Confirmation Features Sunday Services at Crestline.

CRESTLINE—Confirmation of catechetical classes featured Palm Sunday services at several of the Crestline churches. All churches observed the day with special devotional services, sermons and music and capacity attendances were reported.

At the English Lutheran church the following received confirmation: Richard Crowell, Donald Winemiller, Robert Nolder, James Greaser, James Granger, Fred Noble, Jr., Clyde Emerick, John Remy, William Watrous, Robert Tracht and Virginia Lightburn.

Rev. C. H. Lange, pastor of Trinity Lutheran, received an adult class of 18 members and a confirmation class of 13 members including Marie Pfeiffer, Robert Waldbauer, Barbara Beck, Mary Lou Sebring, Mary Ellen Bauer, Paul Dapper, Robert Garverick, Donna Gledhill, Doris Klahn, Donald and Thelma Krichbaum, James Blasing, and Phyllis Shearer.

Sorority Members Entertained At Crestline Tea

CRESTLINE—Fourteen members of Lambda chapter of Delta Kappa Gamma sorority from Morrow and Crawford counties were entertained at a tea Saturday at the Blue Lantern.

Hostesses for the affair were Misses Eloise Henry of Shelby, Freda Miller and Mary Agnes Kellar of Crestline.

Mrs. C. E. Dewald, a guest, gave a travel talk on South America and had on display various articles which she brought from that country.

Miss Freda Loyer, New Washington president of Lambda chapter, presided; plans were made for initiation to be held at Galion, May 3.

Hostesses at that time will be Misses Jean Leavenworth, Josephine Tracht and Gertrude Mann.

AWARDED PRIZES

CRESTLINE—Mrs. Mae Mann and Mrs. A. D. Miller won score awards for bridge games played by the M. Y. club last week at the home of Mrs. W. C. Marquart.

GALION—Mrs. Carl Dunn, Harding Way East, was admitted to City hospital Sunday evening for an operation.

GALION COUPLE MARRIED IN 'EARLYBIRD' SERVICE SUNDAY

GALION—Marriage vows were exchanged in a quiet service Palm Sunday by Mildred Balliett, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Balliett of South Market street, and Donald E. Christman, son of Mr. and Mrs. George Christman of North Union street.

The single ring ceremony was read at 8:45 a. m. at the First Lutheran parsonage by Rev. Harry R. Merle.

Attending the couple were the bride's brother and his wife, Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Balliett, Galion. The former Miss Balliett wore a frock of powder blue with matching accessories. Her shoulder corsage was of red roses. A similar ensemble of the same shade was worn by the bride's sister-in-law.

Following the service a wedding breakfast was served at the home of the bride's parents, with covers laid for 12 members of the immediate families and the bride's grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Sulser, of near Martel.

Following a wedding trip to Washington, D. C., the couple will return to Galion to make their home at 261 North Union street.

The bride was graduated from Martel high school in 1936. Her husband was a member of the 1935 graduating class of Galion high school. Both are employed at the North Electric Manufacturing company.

SHELBY—Of interest in Shelby were the weddings of Miss Emma Jean Hoffman and William Saldin, Jr., of Norwalk, and Miss Naomi Landis of Shelby and Edward L. Arnold of near Shiloh, both of which took place over the weekend in nearby communities.

Miss Hoffman exchanged marriage vows with Mr. Saldin Saturday at a ceremony in the D. A. R. home in Norwalk.

Rev. James A. Scott, pastor of Methodist church here, performed the ceremony before immediate members of the families. Attending were the bride's sister, Miss Mary C. Hoffman of Shelby, and B. D. Young of Norwalk.

The former Miss Hoffman is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Hoffman of Shelby. Graduating from Shelby high school and the University of Michigan School of Nursing, she has been employed as a special nurse at Mansfield General hospital.

In a quiet ceremony Saturday afternoon, Miss Naomi Landis was united in marriage to Edwin L. Arnold of near Shiloh at the home of Rev. Lena Jennings in Perryville.

Rev. Jennings, pastor of the Perryville Presbyterian church, read the service. The bridegroom's sister, Miss Marie Arnold, of near Shiloh, and Robert Bushey of Shelby attended the couple.

A reception was given at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Landis, following the ceremony. Later in the day Mr. and Mrs. Arnold left for a motor trip and will make their home at 109 Second street here until April 20.

Mrs. Arnold attended Shelby schools and has been employed at Shelby Salesbook company. Arnold is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Arnold of near Shiloh. Graduating from the Shiloh schools, he has been employed at Shelby Cycle company.

CHURCHES AT GALION FILLED PALM SUNDAY

Special Sermons and Musical Programs Offered To Congregations.

GALION—Most Galion churches were well filled for Palm Sunday observance, special sermons and musical programs being offered together with the blessing and distribution of palms in some of the churches and baptism and reception of members in other churches.

At the Peace Lutheran church a class of 10 children were confirmed by Rev. P. E. Auer besides the reception of 16 adults.

Members of the confirmation class were John Harrison, Donald Yunker, Charles Heiser, Leiv Oxaal, Richard Dursch, John Weithoff, Genevieve Shumaker, Jean Chapman, June Derfler, and Norma Gilechrist. In the evening, the choir presented a special cantata.

Members of the class confirmed at the First Reformed church Sunday morning by Rev. R. R. Elliker were Helen Beck, Elaine Berry, Patricia Brown, Harriet Burden, Edward Ross, Dale Gundrum, James Hestera, Grace Huy, Shirley Nichols, Robert Poister, Robert Timson, Persis Townsend, Marjory Tracht, Joyce Wittschlager and Donald Wolfelt.

There was a confirmation class at the First Lutheran church confirmed by Rev. Harry R. Merle. Besides the confirmation service, three babies were baptized, and two new members received.

Members of the class were Dorothy and Joan Cook, Magdalene Dickerson, Patricia Eckstein, Ruby Shook, Harry Davis, Kenneth Jones and Ronald Rink.

Trinity Lutheran church welcomed its new pastor, Rev. Henry Young. He was installed by Rev. J. W. Schillinger of Columbus, president of the Ohio District.

Young came to Galion from Bolkins where he was pastor of the St. Paul and St. Jacob Lutheran churches for the past four years. He was a former pastor at Cardington.

WILMINGTON, Del.—(AP)—Prof. Godfrey Rodriguez believes he has the remedy to save mankind.

The professor holds that man should breathe like animals. Such method utilizes the stomach as a bellows forcing the air upward and fully expanding the lungs.

Rodriguez wants to teach school children his method of respiration. He contends that he himself is immune to all respiratory diseases because of stomach breathing. He has a chest capable of being expanded from 47 to 54 inches.

Rodriguez invoked 480 Biblical references to support his theory. He said that he illustrated that correct breathing not only produces good health, but also personal godliness.

PULLS BONER

KENNEBUNK, Me.—(AP)—Kenneth Roberts says he will revise the next edition of his latest historical novel, "Oliver Wiswell," because citizens of Norwood, Mass., are sticklers on historical facts.

In describing the travels of Oliver Wiswell and Thomas Buell from Connecticut to Milton, Mass., Roberts said they passed through Uxbridge, Mills, Medfield and Norwood during August 1776. Citizens of Norwood wrote the author, telling him that Norwood was East Dedham at the time of the story.

Greeks and Yugoslavs Slow Up Nazi 'Blitz'

Offer Stern Resistance Though Germans Claim 20-Mile Advance; Belgrade Bombed, Abandoned as Capital.

From Hungary, Rumania and Bulgaria came reports—and protests—of air action by British and Yugoslav planes. Rumania reported air attacks upon Timisoara (Temisvar), the German army headquarters about 75 miles from Belgrade, and upon Orsova and Arad. Sofia charged that it had been raided and that an air attack had also been made on Kustendel. Budapest had an air raid alarm and reported that six British bombers had been shot down in an attack upon Szeged while other attacks were made on Peci, Komand, Villany and Seklos.

The most fierce fighting apparently was centering on the vital Ruffel Pass on Greece's northern frontier.

Here British planes were in action, attacking German troops in the narrow Struma valley and contesting stubbornly with the Luftwaffe for air control over the Pass, control of which probably constitutes the key to the Aegean port of Salonika.

The German high command admitted that "heavy resistance" had been encountered and that nine German planes had been lost in the first day's operations.

Italy belatedly announced her entrance into the war against Yugoslavia and claimed her planes had attacked Split, sinking two ships, and Attaro where a destroyer, a floating dock, a merchant ship and a munitions depot were said to have been hit.

The position of Hungary—with whom Britain still maintains diplomatic relations—Rumania and Bulgaria was still uncertain. Hungary declared a national state of alarm.

Turkey was standing neutral and there was no indication that she would act, at least for the time being.

Russia's position was more enigmatic than ever. Hardly two hours before Germany announced she was at war with Yugoslavia the Soviet radio announced signature of a pact of friendship and non-aggression with Yugoslavia.

Along the Bulgarian-Greek border, British and German troops were fighting for the first time since the evacuation of Dunkirk. The British had an army estimated as high as 300,000 men in Greece, commanded by Gen. Sir Archibald Wavell, hero of North Africa.

Yugoslavia suppressed all news. Italy announced that effective to night she and Germany were cutting off all communications abroad between 8 p. m. and 7 a. m. There were few direct or official reports of fighting in any particular area but dispatches from Greece told significantly of a wild, two-day holiday in Athens inspired by the week-end developments.

Greece, a nation of 50,147 square miles and 7,100,000 inhabitants, smaller in both size and population than the state of Illinois, was being attacked in full force by both German and Italian armies. But she was optimistic over the prospect of more help from Britain and the United States and the gaining of Yugoslavia as an ally.

Far removed from the Balkan scene, but due to affect it profoundly, was the Italian surrender of Addis Ababa, capital of Ethiopia, bringing the East African war to a close.

Yugoslav Government Leaves Belgrade After Bombing.

BERN, Switzerland—(INS)—The Yugoslav government of General Dusan Simonic today was reported to have abandoned Belgrade after German planes blasted the city in a series of attacks which reportedly converted great sections into a virtual 'sea of flames'. The government may have gone to a town somewhere in the Bosnian mountains.

The third German raid on Belgrade was reported to have killed one member of Premier Simonic's cabinet—Public Works Minister M. Kulovetz.

Belgrade, reports reaching Bern indicated, was hammered for six hours by masses of German planes. These dispatches said that fires were raging in nearly every section of the Yugoslav capital.

auditorium. He will speak on "The Merchandise You Sell." The time for the lecture has been postponed to about 9 p. m. to allow those attending to take part in Holy Week services. A sales educational film will be shown before the lecture at 8:30 p. m. for those wishing to attend.

Primary purpose of the sales course and contest is to impress Mansfield shoppers with the better selling available right here in the city and to bring the sales people and customer into closer contact.

Vining, in his last lecture, pointed out that it was the sales people's duty to inform shoppers of the materials on hand and also to tell what the customer wants. He stated that this could be done better if the shopper and sales person are familiar with each other.

The course and contest, known as the Mansfield plan, if found successful here will be used throughout the country. Vining believes that understanding of the shopper's wants and of merchandise are more important for better selling than charts, statistics and experts' opinions.

Prisoner Keeps Strangely Mum For Five Years

PHILADELPHIA—(AP)—Five years ago Philadelphia police arrested a man for automobile theft and took him to court for a hearing. At his trial he gave his name as Joseph Luzer and since then, as far as prison officials know, he has not said a word.

Recently Luzer was eligible for freedom having served his minimum sentence, but because he refused to break his strange silence, it was thought best to keep him for the maximum 10-year term. Probation authorities believe he may have been a cog in some spy ring.

Physicians, psychiatrists, parole agents and guards have tried every conceivable means of making him talk but their efforts are met with a blank stare. Medical reports show that he is capable of speech and officials are sure he is above normal mentality.

United States immigration authorities are investigating the man's citizenship status. If proved an alien, he will be deported.

WEEK'S DELAY AGREED ON IN STEEL TIE-UP

Union and U. S. Steel Officials Postpone Threat of Work Stoppage to April 15.

per cent of the nation's bituminous coal, said they would not sign. Principal UMW demands included wage increases and elimination of a north-south pay differential.

John R. Steelman, chief of the federal conciliation service, said he "hoped and believed a way can yet be found" to head off the U. S. Steel strike, now delayed to April 15. The union mainly wants 10 cents an hour more pay. The company, which employs 261,000, has offered 2 1/2 cents.

Hopeful also were federal and state conciliators working to end a production tieup at Ford's vast River Rouge plant, whose operations are vital to $155,000,000 of defense orders.

James F. Dewey, federal conciliator, and Murray D. Van Wagener, Michigan governor, said in a joint statement they hoped to get company and union representatives together not later than tomorrow. "We hope," they added, "to reach a settlement at that time."

With the Allis-Chalmers strike out of the way the defense mediation board was left with three disputes unsettled out of eight which have been certified to it by the labor department.

These are the Cowles Tool company, Cleveland, where 80 CIO United Automobile Workers ask wage-hour adjustments and a closed shop; the Standard Tool company, Cleveland, where 650 CIO-UAW members made those demands plus a new bargaining agreement; and the Seas Shipping company, New York, whose AFL marine engineers want a bigger bonus rate.

CIO's united electric, radio and machine workers called a work stoppage last midnight at the Bayway, Elizabeth, N. J., plant of Phelps-Dodge Copper Products corporation, which employs 1,500 and has $30,000,000 of defense orders. The union wants a union shop, wage adjustments and vacations.

Akron Bus and Trolley Workers Threaten Tie-up.

AKRON—(INS)—Threat of a transportation tie up today menaced this city after members of the Akron Transportation union No. 1 (CIO) voted to strike if their demands were not met by the Akron Transportation company.

More than 250 bus drivers and trolley car operators were seeking 85 cents an hour, as compared with the 73 1/2 they are now getting.

Mayor Locke said that he would also ask council to make some provision for the collection of receipts from the meters. The term of L. L. Kochenderfer's appointment as collector will expire next Sunday.

Mayor Locke will ask council to renew the collector's salary or make other provisions for the collections.

Council granted Kochenderfer a three-month appointment on Jan. 13. The city pays $85 monthly and the parking meter company $60 towards the collector's salary. The company's share is paid for serving of the meters.

U. S. RUSHES WAR HELP TO SLAVS, GREEKS

fresh from a conference with President Roosevelt, directed his declaration chiefly to the newest victim of the European war.

"The barbaric invasion of Yugoslavia and the attempt to annihilate that country by brute force," he said, "is but another chapter in the present planned movement of attempted world conquest and domination."

He asserted that "the American people have the greatest sympathy for the nation which has been thus so outrageously attacked," and he added:

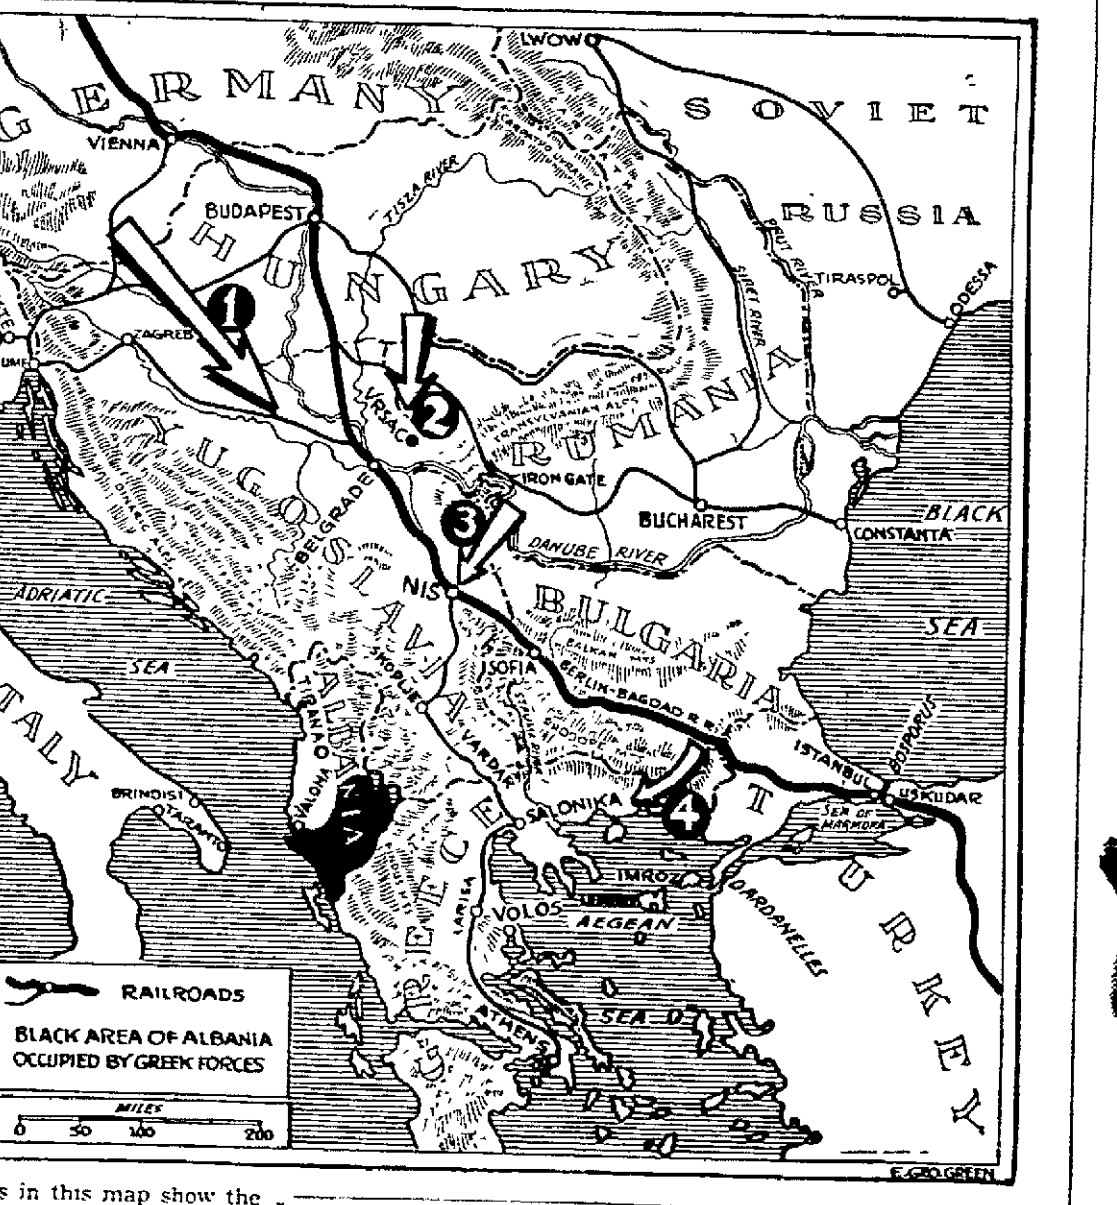

"This government with its policy of helping those who are defending themselves against would-be conquerors is now proceeding as speedily as possible to send military and other supplies to Yugoslavia."

Simultaneously the government moved to provide such assistance as it could to American citizens in the embattled country. The total could not be determined immediately officials said, but more than 2,000 were reported to be in Belgrade alone.

The problem of transporting the materials to the Balkans was believed here not to be very great. Eight Yugoslav ships were reported in American ports in the last few days.

Yet many days of dangerous travel are ahead for them.

How Palm Sunday Blitz Began In Balkans

Arrows in this map show the simultaneous four-pronged attack by Germany on Yugoslavia and Greece, launched from Germany (1), Hungary (2), Rumania (3), and Bulgaria (4). Though the Grecian port of Salonika appeared the chief goal of the German attack, the first major battle of the new Balkan front occurred at Nis, important Yugoslav railway junction where Yugoslavs put up a stubborn resistance to advancing Germans.

She Loved a Spy + + + + +

CHAPTER XIX

Sometimes she wanted to shake Pat and cry, "You little fool! Karl will never marry you. He already has a wife. He's a spy—a spy!..." But she could not. This was something more important than Pat, Joan or Paul. This was something that endangered the lives and future of millions. Individual security must be sacrificed until they could prove Karl guilty. Only in this way could they get to the bottom of his activities and finally stamp them out.

Then one day in mid-January an unexpected clue came. Paul had arrived at the apartment to drive Joan to work. Pat had just risen and was eating her breakfast in the kitchen. Her brown eyes were clouded. She had scarcely spoken to Joan.

"Something is wrong with Pat," Joan confided to Paul. "Maybe you can find out what it is."

Paul went into the kitchen, "Hello, youngster, how's everything?"

"Fine," Pat said briefly.

"Look here, honey, if something is troubling you, why not tell me?"

"Because you can't help me—no one can."

Joan stood in the doorway regarding her with pity. "Maybe I could, if you would trust me."

Pat was silent for a moment, then she burst out, "It's Karl!"

"Karl? What about him?" Paul demanded.

There were tears in Joan's eyes. She could not bear the pain in this girl's face. She knew only too well what her young heart was suffering.

"Last night," Pat continued, "I saw him with another woman."

Joan smiled with relief, but Paul inquired, "What did she look like? Where were they?"

"I was on my way back to work when I saw him standing in front of a shop with this woman. He was smiling and holding her hand."

"Young or old?" Paul asked carelessly.

"She was about Karl's age. Rather hard-looking, with black hair. She wore beautiful furs. Karl was smiling at her..."

Joan drew in her breath. Mrs. Murdock!

When Joan and Paul were driving back to the club, she asked, "Do you think it means anything? Karl and Mrs. Murdock?"

"There's some connection. I've suspected it for some time. Look at this! He indicated a copy of the morning paper that lay on the seat beside him."

"Mysterious explosion in aviation plant," Joan read.

"And there's more to it than that," Paul went on. "I have just learned that the plans for a new bombing plane for the government have been stolen. Last night Karl sent a telegram to a hotel in that same city. He used another name. The telegraph in itself was innocent enough. Probably in code. I feel sure he's connected with the stolen plans; also this Murdock woman. The fact that Pat saw them together and that they were so obviously pleased about something might be an indication of it."

In the office, Joan watched Karl carefully, but she could learn nothing from his attitude except that he seemed extraordinarily cheerful. She had noticed that Karl seemed to delight in trying to make her jealous of Pat. Apparently he thought his charms too potent for any girl to forget. But Joan only smiled at his attempt to hurt her.

She had often marveled at Karl's changing moods. She had seen him hard and uncompromising, sophisticated, tender, sarcastic. But this no longer appealed to her. She was completely through with Karl Miller. She laughed to herself as she carried out his orders to send Pat a dozen American Beauty roses—the same flowers he had once sent to Joan. Love was a delightful game to Karl; he played it without variations, using the same endearments, the same display of charm—even the same flowers. Joan would not have been surprised to see her own magnificent emerald sparkling from Pat's hand. But perhaps Karl was saving that for a final proof of his sincerity. Apparently he used a proposal of marriage only when necessary.

It was surprisingly how little she cared. Sybil's disappearance had wiped out all romantic illusions. Life was a serious struggle, not a romantic dream. Every minute Sybil's life was in danger. Every move Karl made might prove to be a clue to her sister's whereabouts.

Joan worked feverishly throughout the evening. The glare of the office lights grated on her nerves. The room was quiet and pleasant yet fraught with undercurrents. She did not feel easy in this room. She could still see Eric's sightless eyes as they had stared up at her from the floor. They were a constant reminder of Karl's cruelty. Eric had double-crossed him. Karl's vengeance was swift—and final. Joan, staring at the floor, shuddered.

When Paul Sherman came in suddenly a few minutes later, Joan was so startled that she half rose from her chair. "Paul! It's you!"

Paul shut the door noiselessly behind him. "What time will you be ready to leave?"

"In about an hour." Her tone matched his own. She knew that something had happened.

"I'll be back for you then." He came quite close and said with a grim smile. "Tonight's the night! We're going to raid the beauty shop."

With a rapidly beating heart Joan turned back to her typewriter but her green eyes watched the hands of the clock as they moved slowly towards midnight.

It was five minutes after twelve when Paul returned to Karl's office for Joan. She was ready, standing by the door in her hat and coat. Paul motioned her to be silent as they went down the stairs and out the rear entrance. His voice was tense as they entered his car. "Karl has taken Pat dancing. I followed Mrs. Murdock home, so she's out of the way. We should be able to find out something."

When he finally parked in an alley near the beauty shop, the street was deserted and no one saw them as they walked swiftly.

"How will we get in?" Joan inquired as they reached the door.

"That is simple enough," Paul said, taking a key from his pocket and opening the door. His flashlight made a path for them through the front of the shop down the hall to Mrs. Murdock's private office. Paul opened the door softly.

"Here we are." He snapped on the lights. "There's no outside window or door here—no danger of our being seen."

Joan breathed a sigh of relief as the door shut behind them.

"I didn't see anything out of the ordinary when I was here," she reminded Paul.

"When you told me about the panelled walls, I had an idea."

He tapped the walls softly. "There is probably another room opening off this one." His fingers beat a tattoo against the wood as he moved slowly around the wall. "There it is!" he said, quietly, and even Joan could detect a hollow sound as his knuckles rapped on the panel.

She stood close behind him, apprehensive as his hands silently explored it. "There should be a button here," he said, frowning. "Wait—here it is." A piece of casing slid from its place, revealing a small iron switch. At the pressure of Paul's finger the panel began to swing aside.

Joan gasped as she watched it move, with its strange grating noise. It swung around to reveal a small room enveloped in darkness.

Paul's flashlight played into the dark. "There doesn't seem to be any light switch in here..." Wait a minute! Here's a lamp. The light revealed a desk, a short-wave radio set and three large filing cabinets. "We've got it!" Paul said. He drew on a pair of gloves. "Don't touch anything," he cautioned Joan.

Joan's heart was in her throat. "Oh Paul, what if Karl should find out we were here?"

"By that time," Paul replied grimly, "it will be too late."

Nevertheless Joan glanced over her shoulder fearfully as Paul began going through the filing cabinet. "I'd like to find a copy of their code. With that, we would have the answer to all Karl's correspondence."

Joan looked curiously at the radio set. "Do you suppose Karl has a receiver, too?"

"Probably, though where it would be I don't know."

"And to think that all this is going on in broad daylight. The customers of this beauty shop certainly have no idea what this place is."

Mrs. James Clark Honored at Party At Sowash Home

Sunbonnets in all sizes were used for decorations at the clever party given Saturday afternoon by Mrs. Robert Brodier for Mrs. James Clark, who was Beverly Schwein before her recent marriage. Mrs. Brodier entertained at the home of her grandmother, Mrs. M. L. Sowash, Park avenue west road, with 24 in attendance.

The affair was a dessert-bridge party with the guests seated at small tables for the refreshments. Large sunbonnets formed a centerpiece and at each place were sunbonnet cups and powder puff favors. When the guests surprised Mrs. Clark with a shower of gifts she found them in a huge bonnet in the color schemes of pink and green which was used throughout. Score prizes were awarded to Mrs. Lillian Kemp and Miss Sue Anderson who presented them to the honoree. The hostess gave her a gift of silver.

On Tuesday evening Miss Jean Shively of Mansfield and Mrs. David Martin of Ashland will entertain for Mrs. Clark and Mrs. Brodier, the former Jane Sowash, at the Smaltz home, 634 West Fourth street. On Saturday afternoon Miss Marjorie Bolus and Mrs. Frank Mengert will be hostesses for a party for the two young women at the Women's club.

Two Guests Give Program At Club Entertainment

Miss Ann Jeannette Klinger, pianist, and Mrs. D. N. Roller were the guest entertainers at the program-tee given by members of the Review of Reviews club Saturday afternoon in the library of the First Congregational church. Twenty-seven members and guests attended the party.

Mrs. R. C. Rehder and Mrs. Frank McDowell were hostesses for the occasion. Mrs. Roller gave a history and descriptive talk on "Bells" and showed her varied collection of musical articles. Miss Klinger favored the group with four selections, Bach's "Organ Fugue," "Perpetual Motion" by Poulenc, "Animal Pictures," descriptive music by Ganz and "Military Polonaise" by Chopin.

Following the program tea was served from a table attractive with spring flowers and lighted tapers. Yellow and green was the color scheme used for the appointments. Mrs. Howard Fox presided.

The next meeting will be held May 9 at the home of Miss Hester Robinson, Pavaonia. Mrs. Rehder will furnish the program, speaking on "Recent Scientific Adventures."

Student Music Club Meets At Hart Home Sunday

"Composers of the 18th Century Symphonies" was the topic discussed Sunday afternoon when members of the Student Music club were entertained at the home of Miss Mildred Hart, Cedar street. Fourteen were present for the program and the business session conducted by Miss Gladys Kerr.

Miss Jean Gardner and Joe Pival reported on the topic and led the panel discussion which followed. Later they played the recordings of Tchaikovsky's "Fifth Symphony." At the close of the meeting refreshments were served by the hostess. The next meeting will be held May 11 at the home of James Thomas, West Third street. Gilbert Ireland and Gladys Kerr will furnish the program. Theodore Wendt was a guest.

To Those Who Must Count Funeral Costs..

ASHLAND GIRL MARRIES MANSFIELD MAN SUNDAY

Miss Opal Moore and Robert Powell Exchange Nuptial Vows Before Altar of First Lutheran Church.

BEFORE the altar of the First Lutheran church Miss Opal Moore, Ashland, became the bride of Robert Powell of Mansfield Sunday noon at 12:30 with Rev. G. E. Swoyer reading the double ring service in the presence of a group of relatives and friends. Palms and ferns formed a pretty background for the quiet service.

The bride wore a redingote ensemble of powder blue with navy accessories. Her corsage was of pink rose buds. Miss Alice Weltmer of Ashland, maid of honor, wore a navy blue costume with a corsage of pink roses.

Attendant for Mr. Powell was John Gurik of Mansfield.

Immediately following the wedding an informal reception was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. F. B. Neuman, 18 Small avenue. A wedding cake topped with a miniature bride couple centered the refreshment table and spring flowers decorated the home.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. S. Moore of Ashland, and Mr. Powell is the son of Mr. Neuman. They will live at the Neuman home for the present while Mr. Powell is in army training at Camp Shelby, Miss.

Mrs. Dale Muth Feted Sunday

Mrs. Dale Muth, nee Marjorie Brook, was entertained with a kitchen shower Sunday afternoon at the home of Miss Kittie Bruch, 87 Mendota street. Miss Jo Kelso was the associate hostess. Eighteen guests participated in social games throughout the afternoon and prizes, which were presented to the honoree, were won by Miss Eleanor Ropp and Miss Marcelle Poth. The hostesses poured at the tea table. Spring flowers and white tapers decorated the table, with blue and peach predominating color scheme. Other parties are being planned for the honoree.

Saving Law Needs Treatment

By MME. QUI VIVE

Women hate wrinkles, mainly because furrows date them. But some of those little finger marks of Time are not disfiguring. One often sees twinkly wrinkles around laughing eyes. They are rather fascinating. They come and go as if they were playing facial tag. They appear when a woman laughs, hide themselves away when the flesh smooths out. But furrowed throat and sagging jaws lines no woman can abide. And there is the under-slung extra chin that once was firm but now is fleshy crepe. That's bad too. It quivers and quavers. No woman should permit such a state of affairs to prevail. She should have nipped all that beauty havoc in the bud. She should have sought professional attention if she didn't know what to do for herself. Prevention is easy, but restoring depleted tissues is a tough job; in many cases it is impossible.

Years hence, when women will be more mindful of health needs, middle-aged and elderly women will not be cursed with flapping, crinkled throats or necks that have tobogganed into a state of debility. Women of the future will exercise emotional control. They will eat properly and at regular hours, get plenty of sleep, find outdoor life more pleasurable. There will then be a slump in the beauty industry.

Here is what should be done when the southern portion of the feminine phiz has lost firmness.

Devote ten minutes every night to this ritual; that is little enough time to give to your beauty chores.

Stand tall, hands on hips, chin on the level, teeth tight together. Turn the head slowly to the side, taking a deep breath, expanding the chest. Exhale as the head is brought back to first position. Ten times to one side, ten to the other. Chin on the level, throw the head back slowly, pulling hard on the muscles of the throat and chest. Do this fifteen times.

Spread on a heavy massage cream, working upward from the collar bones, sliding flattened fingers over the jaw line.

Place the finger tips on either side of the chin, go upward to the corners of the lips with a rotary movement. If there are lines from nostrils to lip tips, include the flesh there.

Stroke from chin to the ears, from chin back of the ears. Press deeply into the flesh so that the underlying muscles will be stimulated by accelerated blood streams. By this time the flesh should be glowing.

Place finger and thumb in the middle of the throat, sweep outward with each one. While the cream remains on, frisk an ice cube over the glowing skin. In the morning bathe the face with cold water and apply an astringent. Witch hazel will serve.

"The Authority on Authorities"

CASH HONORS AT START

Before embarking upon a cross-ruff, a declarer should cash any top honors he holds in the remaining side suit. Otherwise one of the defenders may manage to discard in that suit and then be in position to do some ruffing on his own hook when those honors are eventually led. Disregard of this principle has cost the loss of plenty of contracts by declarers who are impatient to get their cross-ruffing under way.

5 ♠	Pass	5 NT	Pass
6 ♠	Pass	6 ♠	Pass

After East led the club Q against this contract, the declarer saw right away that he could trump clubs in his own hand and hearts in the dummy. So with no further ado, he set sail upon his cross-ruff. He took the first trick with the dummy club A, ruffed the club 2, laid down the heart A, ruffed the heart 2, ruffed the club 4. West discarding a diamond, then the heart 3. When he disregarded the danger of West's discard and led the club 6 for a third ruff of the suit, West threw off his second diamond and the contract was doomed. There was no longer any way for North to keep West from ruffing one of his diamond honors, in addition to which he had to lose a diamond trick to East. So he was down one.

How easy it would have been for North, after winning the first trick with the club A, to rake in his diamond tops before starting his cross-ruff. Or he could have avoided that style of play entirely, by merely ruffing out his own three losing hearts, using the diamond tops for entries to his hand, and then winding up with a bunch of trump tricks. Either of these procedures would have limited his losses to a single trick in diamonds.

"Pitfalls of Love"

(A Sequel to Marriage Meddlers)
By ADELE GARRISON

"There's gratitude for you," my husband intoned bitterly. "Giving you an alibi all ready made!"

"I'll manufacture my own, thank you," I told him saucily, and then I turned back to Helena. "You understand, don't you, Helena?" I urged, "that I just couldn't wait another minute to telephone and find out how the children were?"

"But I still don't see," she protested, "why you didn't use our telephones as soon as you came in."

"I do," Ronald came to my aid swiftly. "Everything was so upset here, with Carol's headache and my brain storm, that I don't wonder Aunt Madge didn't feel like injecting a telephone call into the mess. And I think, if we'll keep still, she has something to tell us."

"Just my reason for having to leave so suddenly," I said, and then went on swiftly with my explanation. But I was conscious of Ronald's intent attitude, and his rapid interest in what I was saying.

An Important Task.

"When I telephoned home to find out about the children," I began, "my father answered. He had been wanting to get in touch with me for hours, he told me, and asked me if I could possibly get into New York tonight, as there was something most important he wished me to do in the city tomorrow morning."

"You know when father wants anything done, he doesn't wish any delay about it," I went on, and Helena nodded in acquiescence.

"I know," she said, and I hurried on.

"We looked up trains at once," I said, "found that I could get one at eight o'clock—and telephoned him again that I could make it."

"Thus nipping the bank roll maternally," my husband put in solemnly, but I loftily ignored him.

"Helena, dear, you do understand how I hate to rush off this way, don't you?" I pleaded, conscious that I was uttering my greatest tarradiddle of the day. For I was wild with the urge to get to Mary and find out what was hidden between the lines of the odd letter Marion had sent to Ronald.

"Of course, darling," she said promptly, and rising from her chair, turned toward the door with her usual leisurely graceful movements, which, however, mask much competency.

"I'll speak to the cook and hurry dinner up a bit," she said. "But you'll have plenty of time anyway."

"I know that," I said smiling at her, and when she had left the room, Dicky put a lazy inquiry.

Ronald's Question.

"Anything in the way of bag-toting you want done before dinner?" he asked.

"Nothing," I said, "just now I'll just slip up to my room now, and freshen up for dinner. Then you may take one bag down if you like. I'll want the smaller one until the last minute," I added, with a remembrance of the lace collar and cuffs which I wished to add to my street costume for dinner, and take off again before I started on my journey.

"Just call me when you're ready," he said, but Ronald interposed a swift amendment.

"I'm going upstairs now anyway," he said, "and if you'll just breathe my name from your door when you're ready I'll be on the spot for any errand you wish."

He held out his hand, and assisted me to rise, then slipped it beneath my arm and escorted me out of the room. But once outside, with the door closed, he stopped and faced me tensely.

"What did your father say about that letter?" he asked hoarsely. "I suppose you told him about it?"

HOROSCOPE

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE
For Tuesday, April 8.

A DAY of progress and opportunity may be read from the dominant planetary aspects. While there may be some friction, anxiety, duplicity with want of co-operation from those in high places, there is nothing portended which may not be offset by the advent of a surprising and quiet unlooked-for opening which may eventually lead to advancement, pleasure and probably unusual adventures. This may concern the emotional or romantic life as well as business prospects. The higher creative faculties are under splendid stimuli for original work.

If It Is Your Birthday.

Those whose birthday it is may look for a progressive and promising year, with sudden openings that hold gainful, constructive and pleasant culminations. The inventive faculties are under fine auspices for accomplishments along original lines. While there may be some minor friction, opposition and imposition, on the whole affairs should move into pleasant places, with romance and adventure among the fulfilled wishes.

A child born on this day should have excellent opportunity for expressing its creative talent and originality, with much genius in inventive, literary and artistic lines. Romance, adventure and unusual experiences bring pleasure.

Tomorrow's Problem.
